

Abstract

A transmissive spatial light modulator having a light-transmission area, comprises: a transparent substrate; a pixel drive circuit provided on the transparent substrate to form an area other than the light-transmission area; and a transmissive light modulation section including a micro-electromechanical element, the transmissive light modulation section being controlled by the pixel drive circuit and being provided above the pixel drive circuit.